JIM RAPPAPORT'S SCHOLARSHIP ENDOWMENT LATEST OF GENEROUS GIFTS FROM ALUMNI

John C. Hawkins '93, Phi Phi Club President

Greetings from Philadelphia! As always, there is much to report from our fraternity over the last year.

The house looks fabulous with last year's new windows and roof, and the improved bathrooms and speedy Internet and cable connections have greatly improved living conditions. The Arthur B. Staib Moose has been fully repaired and is back on the wall where he belongs. Meanwhile, our undergraduate chapter continues to show progress after several tough years, and significantly improving their rush and pledging programs has yielded many dedicated new brothers.

But our biggest news is the launch of a new undergraduate scholarship program, which you can read all about in the accompanying article. The Phi Phi Club has always been very fortunate to have many very giving alumni – whether it's Jim Rappaport's ('77) astonishing establishment of this scholarship endowment, Pete Sigmund's ('51) very generous gift of a gorgeous 1903 Ludwig piano, Dave Mudge's ('73) and Joe Moloznik's ('54) incredible commitment to keeping the alumni board going on track over the last several decades, or any of the hundred of you who have graciously made a donation to the Phi Phi Club to support our annual events and house renovations.

Your contributions, in whatever form they've taken, are vital to the strength and longevity of our brotherhood, and are always appreciated and always needed.

I was thrilled to be able to relive old memories with so many of you at Homecoming over some great food and football. For those of you who couldn't make it, we missed you, but we look forward to catching up at our Alumni Day Barbecue on May 11 (or at least at our next Homecoming on November 2)!

BROTHERS COLLABORATE TO BUILD STADIUM

Geoff Hess '91 and Josh Getzler '90 met in high school but they didn't become friends until they became brothers. Josh recruited Geoff to join Alpha Chi Rho at Penn. Later they became partners on an effort to bring a new baseball stadium to New York City.

Josh and his father, Stanley, own and run the Staten Island Yankees in partnership with George Steinbrenner. Geoff Hess was the senior adviser to then-Mayor Rudy Giuliani and spent a lot of time working out the business details of building the stadium with Josh.

"What makes it so nice is that the relationship [with Josh] was fostered and grew so tremendously in college that I ended up doing a very large transaction with him in New York City and, under Giuliani's leadership, built a $40 million stadium," Brother Hess said. He calls the stadium "a tremendous legacy for Giuliani."

"If you had said to me in college that I would someday build a $40 million baseball stadium with Josh Getzler, my big brother, I would have said you were out of your mind."

In the fraternity, Brother Hess served as social director and pledge director. As senior adviser to "America's Mayor," Hess was responsible for designing new initiatives,

PHI PHI CHAPTER SCHOLARSHIP CHALLENGE

The Phi Phi Club is very excited to announce a tremendous opportunity for the undergraduates that we hope you will all support. You should have received a letter in the last couple months from brother Jim Rappaport '78. In his letter, he requests your support for an endowed scholarship fund just for Phi Phi brothers that he has established with the national fraternity and its Educational Foundation.

Jim has established the fund as a challenge grant; he has agreed to donate up to $10,000 per year for five years as it is matched 2-to-1 by other Phi Phi alumni. All of the money will be used exclusively for a scholarship fund just for Phi Phis, so by next year we should be giving out a substantial scholarship each year to a worthy undergrad. Since this is through our national's nonprofit foundation, your gift is tax-deductible and corporate matching is also allowed. As you know, Penn is ridiculously expensive these days and many of our undergraduates are barely getting by, so a scholarship like this is sorely needed and will give us a real competitive edge over other houses.

We hope we can all rise to this challenge and make a contribution. If you are interested in giving to this scholarship fund, you can mail your check, made out to "AXPEF Phi Phi Fund," to AXPEF, 109 Oxford Way, Neptune, NJ 07753.

If you have questions about this fund, call the Executive Director of AXPEF, Scott Carlson, at 732-988-0588.

The Phi Phi Club and the undergraduates give a very big thank you to Jim for making this wonderful idea a reality with his extremely generous gift!

overseeing the reengineering of management throughout NYC government, and in a large part, reacting to the news of the day.

"I was with [Giuliani] on Sept. 11 — trapped in a building with him, and stood at the foot of the tower and watched people jumping," Brother Hess said. The mayor and those with him reacted with horror.

"We were trapped in the building at 75 Barclay Street," recalled Hess. "We ultimately got out through the help of a maintenance worker who took us underground and we came out in the lobby of a building a number of blocks away."

"What Rudy always said was that ultimately New Yorkers were resilient enough to get through it, and we would come out stronger than we were before."

As of January, Hess is a director in Giuliani Partners, a consulting and investment company started by the former mayor. However, he said, "You may find me in the White House in a few years."

The reporter asked: With Giuliani? Hess said: "Wouldn't that be great?"

Asked about the value of our fraternity, Brother Hess said, "the greatest benefit is not the great parties or all the football games, but rather the relationships you make. That, ultimately, is the most lasting value of the fraternity."

"It teaches you how to get along with people," he said. "You're really forced into a group that's diverse ... and I think Alpha Chi Rho at Penn is probably more diverse than any other group on campus. Here I am, a Manhattan kid who grew up in a prep school in New York City, and now I'm thrown in with this diverse group. It really teaches you how to deal with people of many different backgrounds, with different beliefs and behaviors."

Hess has stayed in touch with several brothers.

"Mike Alfano '93 is a lawyer for a hedge fund in Bermuda and is doing very, very well," Hess said. "Ed Tuohy '91, a doctor at Yale, was my roommate freshman year in the dorms. He was a Pennsylvania football player ... goes on to rush with me, and ends up being the best man in my wedding. We were very different kinds of people. I was a preppy kid from Manhattan. He was from a small town in Pennsylvania. I was wearing a blazer, he was wearing a sweatshirt. I wouldn't have had the opportunity to develop the relationship I had with Ed but for Alpha Chi Rho."

Hess is also in contact with Jason Fortin '92 who works in New York City. He would love to hear from Flite Freiman, who didn't graduate from Penn, and Gil Vogel '90.

Geoff's career path started with a summer internship in Giuliani's office when Giuliani was the U.S. Attorney for the southern district of New York in the 1980s.

In the summer of 1989, Hess volunteered to work for Giuliani's first and ultimately failed mayoral campaign. In 1997, he was appointed special counsel to the deputy mayor for operations in the Giuliani administration.

"This is the classic example of not burning bridges," Hess said. "I stayed in touch and friendly with the people I worked with over those two summers, further developing those relationships."

After two years in city government, he went to work for a global real estate company, Tishman Speyer Properties. In October 2000, "Mayor Giuliani asked me to return to public service, and he appointed me senior adviser to the mayor."

Hess describes himself as "a tremendous sports fan and season ticket holder of the New York Yankees. He also attends minor league games like the Staten Island Yankees and the Brooklyn Cyclones, a Mets farm team. He learned to scuba dive in Hawaii and got certified."

"I have also become an avid fan of thoroughbred horse racing," Hess said, adding that this would not surprise brothers who know him. However, they will be amused to learn that Hess "managed the effort, still not finished, to privatize New York City Off-Track Betting (OTB), which is a billion dollar corporation owned by the city. The Giuliani administration turned it around from a company that was losing money in 1993 to a company that generates in excess of $30 million per year. Everyone knew that I loved horse racing. It's funny that I wound up doing something with that business."

Alumni Day Barbecue

Saturday, May 11, 12 p.m.

(And Homecoming 2002 is November 2!!)

Please join us for the festivities!

PROFILE: DAVE MUDGE '73
REMEMBERING A DIVERSE GROUP OF MEN
United by Hatred of Chicken a la King

Dave Mudge is currently an emeritus board member of the Phi Phi Club and was one of the chief architects of the alumni board's revitalization. This Q&A profile with Brother Mudge is part of an ongoing series to help us get to know our brothers better.

Q: What are some of your favorite memories of the fraternity?

- Playing touch football across the street at the "Gaza Strip," the open space between Hillel and the Christian Association.
- Playing hearts for untold hours at a time — with Howard Ellis '72, John Morris '72 and Bill Farran '72.
- Blackjack games that would go on for days.

Q: Why did you join?

After receiving an invite, I realized that the house was really diversified, unlike many of the other houses that had a distinct "flavor" in terms of members. AXP had Christians and Jews, blacks and whites, flower children and ROTC types, preppies and good ol' country boys, jocks and nerds. A few foreigners helped to complete the picture. It was impossible to type the house. As a learning experience, it was invaluable.

Q: What was your nickname?

None that I ever heard of, although I'm sure that I was called a few things.

Q: Who were your Fraternity roommates?

I was lucky enough to live in the house for three years. My sophomore year was in the second floor front (north) room, with Robert Kloss '72. My most memorable time with Bob was after his final exams in the spring, when he had heard that he had been accepted to med school. It took days to clean up after his celebration. I doubt if he can remember any of it.

The next two years I roomed with Tom Gagan '73 — junior year in the same room as sophomore year, and senior year, when I served as president, across the hall in the second floor front (south). I did that just to change rooms. Tom was the best roommate I could have hoped for. I remember planning my run for the presidency of Phi Phi, as well as laying the groundwork for our first toga party. We also had to deal with the problem of the meal program coordinator exhausting the year's food budget before the first semester was over. I was nearly lynched for serving chicken a la king twice a week.

Q: What kind of influence did the Fraternity have on you?

There're about three-and-a-half years where I can't remember anything. Seriously, the experience of trying to pull together the incredibly disparate menagerie that was AXP in order to function not only as a house, but as a positive influence on both the university and the outside world helped to train me to deal with volunteer groups of different backgrounds and goals.

Q: With whom do you stay in contact?

I stay in contact with many of the brothers who come back for Homecoming. I occasionally touch base with my roommate of two years, Tom Gagan '73 (who recently celebrated the birth of his first child). I am always interested in reestablishing contact with all of the brothers that I've worked with over the years, which by now number in the hundreds.

Q: Tell us about your family.

I married the former Pat Conaway, who used to teach ice skating at Penn. She still teaches skating at local rinks. We bought my parents' house, meaning that I've now kept the same address (Burlington, N.J.) for 50 years. We have one son, Sumner, who was born in 1984 and is now 17.

Q: What other activities were you involved in during your time at Penn?

Besides being the undergraduate president of the Phi Phi Chapter, I devoted four years to the Penn Band, also serving as president of that organization. I also participated in NROTC for four years, which provided my scholarship, kept me out of the draft, and provided me with immediate employment after graduation.

Q: What do you do for a living?

After spending five years in the Navy, I was able to pursue my true desire, and I've been working as an archaeologist. I've spent the last 21 years working for the State of New Jersey in that capacity.

Q: What organizations are you involved with now?

Besides serving on the AXP board of directors for the last 20-plus years; I am currently the at-large representative for the Middle Atlantic Archaeological Conference, in which capacity I've served for the last six years. I am the current president-elect for the Eastern States Archaeological Federation, and will be installed as president next year, barring any scandals. I have served as an officer for the Archaeological Society of New Jersey. I serve as an ordained elder in my church (Presbyterian), which I have done for almost 15 years. I also serve as the mission chairperson for the Presbyterian Church for the entire South Jersey region. I have been serving on the Florence Township Environmental Commission for almost 15 years.

Q: What hobbies do you enjoy?

I do a little antiquing, surf the 'net, read history. I am attempting to write my doctoral dissertation, and I travel out west once a year.

Q: What goals do you have for the next few years?

I still have some plans to improve the various organizations that I work with. For better or worse, the graduate board of AXP is a lot stronger now than when I was an undergraduate. We've renovated nearly every part of the house, including adding a new roof, repointing of the brickwork, and finally, installing new windows. Along the way we've rebuilt the upstairs bathrooms, replaced the boiler, installed new electrical service and Internet connections, and survived being disbanded for a semester. With all that, we still have a positive cash flow and money in the bank. We've come a long way since the time when I called a meeting of the board of directors and I was the only one who showed up (and no, that was not how I got elected president).

Even so, we need to continue to foster better undergrad involvement, higher levels of participation from the grads, and work toward an endowment fund.

DONORS TO DATE

Thank you to the brothers listed, who have already made contributions to our 2001-2002 giving program. Your contributions provide the sole support that enables us to continue our alumni relations program, which includes the publication of this newsletter. NEW CLASS OF 17 OUTSTANDING MEMBERSHIP CANDIDATES ENSURES FULL HOUSE, CONTINUED EXCELLENCE

By Jason Belinkie '04, Undergraduate President

This year we undergraduates of Alpha Chi Rho's Phi Phi Chapter maintained and strengthened the level of excellence for which our chapter is known. Coming off a very successful year, we have continued to demonstrate the tenets of brotherhood on which our fraternity is founded.

We began the year with a renewed commitment to maintaining full occupancy of our Chapter Hall through a superior member recruitment effort. After a successful year of admitting 15 brothers last year, we were determined to improve our rush and recruitment strategies even further. Starting in September, every brother made a concerted effort to advocate the benefits of being a member of Alpha Chi Rho. During our formal rush period in January, we could see that our efforts had paid off, and we are proud to announce that we have 17 candidates for membership. Next year the house will be fully occupied for the second year in a row.

Once again we have continued the long tradition of campus involvement and leadership. Alpha Chi Rho brothers hold leadership positions for such prominent organizations as Civic House, the Preceptorials, Student Events Planning Committee, several athletic teams and clubs, and the Interfraternity Council. Senior Kevin Meyers is currently the president of SPEC and is busily preparing for the big weekend of Spring Fling. Juniors Greg Millhauser and Brian Ferrell are also continuing leadership roles on the Spring Fling Committee. In addition, sophomore Robert Lavan began his term as IFC's academic vice president.

In closing, we thank all the brothers past and present for your continued moral and financial support. We look forward to seeing you at Alumni Day, Homecoming, and any other time you are in the neighborhood. Best for the upcoming year.

On July 30, 2001, recent AXP grads met in New York's Little Italy for dinner and drinks. ALUMNI NEWS

J. Thomas Liddle Sr. '32 (Park Place at Fellowship Village, Box 204 N., 8000 Fellowship Rd., Basking Ridge, NJ 07920) My wife of 67 years, Edith R. Liddle, passed away on January 25, 2001. I moved to my new address (above) in August.

George Blankley '33 (208 Rodney Cir., Bryn Mawr, PA 19010) I finally retired. I turned 90 on September 10, 2001.

Daniel G. D'Imperio '53 (4001 Broadway, Allentown, PA 18104) I'm proud to display this license plate on my car.

Robert M. Grohol '54 (263 Woodland Rd., Madison, NJ 07940; rmgrohol@aol.com) As of July 1, 2000, I became a board member of First Investor's Corp., one of Wall Street's oldest mutual fund families.

Robert E. McCleave Jr. '56 (2211 Quartermaster Ln., Reston, VA 20191; mccleave_robert@prc.com) Pat and I are looking forward to retiring from my second career as an acquisition analyst with Litton/PRC. The first career was spent as an Army officer. Our new home base will be Honolulu.

Guy E. Waltman '56 (314 N. Greenwood Ave., Lehigh Acres, FL 33972; joyceguy@olsusa.com) My wife, Joyce, and I got back on September 27, 2001, from a one-month holiday in Australia. We spent a week in Sydney, a week in Melbourne, a week scuba diving and snorkeling on the Great Barrier Reef in Cairnes, and a few days in Canberra. We then returned to our home in Lehigh Acres, Fla. We had a fabulously good time while on the trip of a lifetime and did not seem to have a problem with jet lag.

Urban S. Reininger III '57 (5540 Tamberlane Cir., #214, Palm Beach Gardens, FL 33418; urbinger@aol.com) We spend the summers at 159 Three Mile Harbor, Hog Creek Rd., East Hampton, NY 11937. Recently, we took a motor trip for a total of 11,000 miles. We've now been in all the 50 states.

Stuart M. Resor '64 (1268 Blue Sky Dr., Cardiff, CA 92007; resorarchitect@aol.com) The big news here is my marriage to Bonnie on September 30, 2001. After knowing Bonnie for one and a half years and just being patient, we wed at the lovely Oceanside Marina Inn. Then it was off to a fun cruise on the "Viking Serenade" for five very fun days! I'll be continuing my architecture business. Bonnie will be pursuing her life insurance and financial planning business. Stop by and see us if you're out our way!

Robert G. White '66 (UNHCR-Ro Indonesia, Cp 2500, Geneva CH-1211, Switzerland) In October 2001, I will have worked for 20 years for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. In addition to several assignments at UNHCR headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, I have been posted to six countries, usually in locations providing asylum to refugees — Egypt, Tanzania, Zambia, South Africa, Russia, and now Indonesia. My wife, Benedicte, and I have been in Jakarta since late 1999 and hope to have the opportunity to remain in this fascinating, but little known, part of the world a while longer. Eventually, we hope to return to either France or the USA to be closer to our three children — although with Gavin working in Senegal and Anne-France and James completing their U.K. studies in a few years, geographic proximity is by no means certain.

Robert S. Goodwin '72 (P.O. Box 684, Columbia, MD 21045) As my older son finishes his pledging at the University of Maryland (unfortunately, no Alpha Chi Rho chapter there), I remember my own experiences since March 1969 and how our house provided meaning in the midst of an otherwise teeming mass of people. Alpha Chi Rho, where four years last for life.

William L. Courtney '73 (507 Harborside Way, Kemah, TX 77565; wlscst@cs.com) I left McComm-Erickson Advertising in September 2000 to join Compaq Computer as director of advertising for North America.

Thomas A. Gagan Jr. '73 (23 Clinton St., Mount Vernon, NY 10552; alpersonpr@aol.com)

Maureen and I are the proud parents of a happy and healthy baby boy named Jack. He was born on November 9, 2000.

MORE NEWS

2000, I took over as president of television programming and development at Film Roman Inc., the producers of "The Simpsons," "King of the Hill," "X-Men" and other animated T.V. shows. Most recently, I'm developing two new shows for MTV ("Hairballs" and "John Waters Patent Leather Dreamhouse" — yes, Bill Latour '77, that John Waters!) and a new one for HBO about old people called "Til the Fat Lady Sings," which I developed with the great Norman Lear. I'm in Manhattan Beach, Calif. Kathy, Carly, Casey and I are doing well.

Jeffrey C. Adler '84 (413 Midsummer Dr., Gaithersburg, MD 20878; jcadler@excite.com) My wife, Faith, and I went to Hawaii to celebrate our 10th wedding anniversary. We biked down Mount Heleakala, the world's largest dormant volcano, and explored Maui's coral reef in a submarine. We live in Gaithersburg, Md., with my sons, Jacob (6) and Ethan (3). I am a partner at Centrac D.C., a marketing research company.

Michael L. Viola '86 (908 Mountain St., Philadelphia, PA 19148; michaellviola@aol.com) My office, Shainberg & Viola, moved, so things were hectic earlier this year (2001). By coincidence, I am now working in the same building as Mike Grimes '86. I am presently serving as the chair of the Philadelphia Bar Association Family Law Section. Things have been keeping me busy which, unfortunately, makes it difficult to get to the house.

Christopher R. Albani '87 (770 Boylston St., #25, Boston, MA 02199; calbani@prtm.com) Principal in Pittiglio Rabin Todd & McGrath. I've been working in Tokyo for PRTM lately in the pharmaceutical practice. I'm considering a relocation to Asia for a few years.

James Dasher '89 (1608 Heathcliff Rd., High Point, NC 27262; jdasher@triad.rr.com) I'm a board-certified member of the American College of Surgeons. I specialize in oncologic surgery and practice at High Point Regional Hospital.

Franklin M. Edwards '89 (224 Mount Vernon Blvd., Royal Oak, MI 48073) My wife, Ann Williams, and I will celebrate our 10th wedding anniversary on June 22, 2001.

Todd A. Springer '89 (1705 N. Rowell Ave., Manhattan Beach, CA 90266; tspringer@tridentcap.com) Managing director at Trident Capital. Angela and I welcomed our second child, a boy named Zachary, in September 2001.

Alan G. Stahl '89 (3000 Swallow Hill Rd., #412, Scott Township, PA 15220; alanstahl@hotmail.com) Attorney with Zimmer Kunz PLLC. My wife, Tricia, and I are looking forward to the birth of our first child. We are expecting a daughter in the first week of April 2002.

Robert A. Yeh '92 (260 Woodward Dr., Milpitas, CA 95035) wrote last June: Emily Chou (W '93) and I are engaged to be married on Sunday, September 2, 2001, at the Ritz Carlton Laguna Niguel in Dana Point, Calif. I'm currently a management consultant with Cap Gemini Ernst & Young. Emily is a finance manager with Procter & Gamble. We are currently living in the San Francisco area.

Kenan Altunis '97 (1 Great Winchester St., London, UK, EC2N ZAB, England; kaltunis@yahoo.com) Vice president at Deutsche Bank. Living in London has made seeing/keeping in touch with you all a bit tricky, but I'm sure when we cross paths in the future, it'll be like we haven't missed a beat. Wishing you all great success.
